Another form of suffering, perhaps more broadly damage inflicted, was pretty touchingly . . . stated by Ms. Rizzo. She's lost faith in the legal system. "What kind of system can let this happen?" That, too, is a form of damage.

I do want to give you an update, I just called Juan to let him know you will be calling, and he informed me that he called USCIS today and was told that they did not receive an application to renew his DACA. He contacted another organization, because he was not getting a response from us, and was told to call USCIS. He was also told that because his DACA expired over a year ago, he could be in jeopardy of losing his ability to renew. His DACA expired on 07/18/2020.

I'm going to see to it that you are for a fact rot in prison next to all your lying conniving buddies with the police and court. You are a coward, a witch, a snake, and SUCCUBUS DEVIL. I pray you repent and turn in your law degree because people like you...women like you DON'T DESERVE IT. You know for a fact you retained me. I can't prove it but you and I both know the copy of that retainer was indeed stolen from my apartment. I pray for your sake that I'm never able to prove it. Go slide back under whatever filthy rock you and yours came from and go to hell. Do not ever contact me or go anywhere near anyone I know or love.

THE CHAIR: Your tone of voice is not appropriate for a courtroom.

MR. VENA: Your actions are not appropriate.

THE CHAIR: Noted.

Now, Mr. Vena, I'm going to ask you to keep your tone of voice down. I appreciate that you have a very difficult proceeding in front of you and I've given you a lot of leeway today.

MR. VENA: No, you haven't.

THE CHAIR: I'm trying to work with you, but your tone of voice and your interruptions and your insult of witnesses, I find it's inappropriate.

MR. VENA: I haven't insulted her. She has no credibility. That's all I've ever said.
